52 ATENEO L.J. 134 (2007)

SUBJECT(S): CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

KEYWORD(S): BILL OF RIGHTS, RIGHT TO BAIL

The Author explores the consequences of two cases on the constitutional right to bail: Government of the United States v. Purganan and Government of Hong Kong Special Administrative Region v. Olalia.

Examining the facts and rationale for the ruling in both cases, the Author concludes that Olalia re-examined Purganan, but in the end, did not overturn it.
