SUBJECT(S): ENVIRONMENTAL LAW, GENDER LAW

KEYWORD(S): FEMINISM, ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION

The Author explores the ecofeminist perspective — a relationship between women and environment. In the Essay, the Author discusses the concept of ecofeminism, its facets in different international environmental agreements, and the importance of its adaptation in environmental policy making. Her discussion of these concepts leads to the conclusion that the ecofeminist perspective must be applied in order to provide practical, effective, and realistic solutions for the protection and preservation of the environment.
