

Congestion of National Courts as a Worldwide Problem

Ricardo C. Puno

22 ATENEO L. J. 1 (1977)

TAG(S): REMEDIAL LAW

The Article introduces its main thesis regarding the overburdened caseload of the National Courts. By looking into possible solutions, the Author tackles issues on the delegability of judicial tasks, the specialization of appellate courts, and the unification or regionalization of appellate courts. Observations such as the need to restructure intermediate federal courts and the unjustified delays were stated by the Author regarding international Courts, particularly in the United States of America. In the Article, the Author proposes possible solutions and remedies to address the issues on the delay of resolving cases.