

Constitutional Courts in Divided Societies: A Call for Scholarship on International Interventionism in Constitutional Law and Politics

Edsel C. F. Tupaz

53 ATENEO L.J. 324 (2008)

SUBJECT(S): CONSTITUTIONAL LAW, INTERNATIONAL LAW

KEYWORD(S): CONSTITUTIONAL COURTS

In this Article, the Author discusses how constitutional courts have become politicized in certain jurisdictions, including the Philippines, and how these courts have dabbled in international interventionism. After introducing this Concept, the Author proposes that scholars try to study the subject to be able to catch up with the developments regarding the subject.